

Anchorage:

The Regulatory Commission of Alaska (RCA) seeks a Hearing Examiner I (Administrative Law Judge) to manage and preside over public utility matters, including granting certificates, approving utility rates, services, and practices, investigating consumer complaints, and promulgating rules and regulations for utilities. The primary duty of ALJs is to draft RCA orders based on hearings, staff memorandums, Commission adjudication meetings, and independent research. ALJs are responsible for control of the procedural schedule and preside over any required evidentiary hearings or conferences.

The RCA regulates electric utilities, water and wastewater utilities, refuse utilities, and gas distribution and utility pipelines by certifying qualified providers of services and ensuring that utilities provide safe and adequate services and facilities at just and reasonable rates, terms, and conditions. The RCA communicates with utilities and the public primarily through orders and other written documents and ALJs are responsible for drafting clear, accurate, and legally permissible language in those communications. As licensed attorneys, ALJs are also responsible for determining the legal impacts of statutes and regulations in dockets.

RCA matters encompass a broad range of knowledge and disciplines including administrative law, engineering, finance and economics, telecommunications, and government/public policy. Matters proceed on long timelines keeping workloads manageable and allow a healthy work life balance. Healthcare, retirement, and partial telework are available.

Applicants with strong writing skills and utility or administrative law experience are encouraged to apply.

Salary range starts at $3,624.00 Biweekly. The requisition closes on 2/20/2024. For more information and how to apply, see the full job description at:
